Bundestkanzlerin Merkel begrüßt die gemeinsame Haltung der EU-Außenminister zu Syrien

Der Sprecher der Bundesregierung, Steffen Seibert, teilt mit:

Bundestkanzlerin Angela Merkel begrüßt, dass die EU-Außenminister sich in Vilnius auf eine gemeinsame Haltung zum Syrien-Konflikt geeinigt haben.

Sie dankt dem Bundesaußenminister, der sich dafür intensiv und erfolgreich eingesetzt hat.

Das Signal eines in seiner Haltung zu diesem schrecklichen Konflikt geeinten Europas ist von unschätzbbarer Bedeutung. Der Erfolg von Vilnius zeigt, wie richtig die deutsche Entscheidung in St. Petersburg war, zunächst auf eine gemeinsame europäische Position hinzuwirken.

Die Bundesregierung wird sich nun als 12. Staat der gestrigen St. Petersburger Erklärung zum Syrienkonflikt anschließen.

Sie nimmt dabei ausdrücklich auf die gemeinsame deutsch-französische Position Bezug, dass ein Bericht der UN-Inspektoren so bald wie möglich - und bevor weitere Maßnahmen ergriffen werden - vorgelegt werden sollte.

Anlage: St. Petersburger Erklärung zum Syrien-Konflikt

Die St. Petersburger Erklärung zum Syrien-Konflikt wurde am Rande des G20-Gipfels am 6. September 2013 von folgenden Staaten in Sankt Petersburg unterzeichnet: Australien, Kanada, Frankreich, Italien, Japan, Republik Korea (Südkorea), Saudi Arabien, Spanien, Türkei, Großbritannien, USA. Deutschland hat sich dieser Erklärung am 7. September angeschlossen.

Text der St. Petersburger Erklärung:

"The international norm against the use of chemical weapons is longstanding and universal. The use of chemical weapons anywhere diminishes the security of people everywhere. Left unchallenged, it increases the risk of further use and proliferation of these weapons.

We condemn in the strongest terms the horrific chemical weapons attack in the suburbs of Damascus on August 21st that claimed the lives of so many men, women, and children. The evidence clearly points to the Syrian government being responsible for the attack, which is part of a pattern of chemical weapons use by the regime.

We call for a strong international response to this grave violation of the world's rules and conscience that will send a clear message that this kind of atrocity can never be repeated. Those who perpetrated these crimes must be held accountable.

Signatories have consistently supported a strong UN Security Council Resolution, given the Security Council's responsibilities to lead the international response, but recognize that the Council remains paralyzed as it has been for two and a half years. The world cannot wait for endless failed processes that can only lead to increased suffering in Syria and regional instability. We support efforts undertaken by the United States and other countries to reinforce the prohibition on the use of chemical weapons.

We commit to supporting longer term international efforts, including through the United Nations, to address the enduring security challenge posed by Syria's chemical weapons stockpiles. Signatories have also called for the UN fact finding mission to present its results as soon as possible, and for the Security Council to act accordingly.

We condemn in the strongest terms all human rights violations in Syria on all sides. More than 100,000 people have been killed in the conflict, more than 2 million people have become refugees, and approximately 5 million are internally displaced. Recognizing that Syria's conflict has no military solution, we reaffirm our commitment to seek a peaceful political settlement through full implementation of the 2012 Geneva Communiqué. We are committed to a political solution which will result in a united, inclusive and democratic Syria.

We have contributed generously to the latest United Nations (UN) and ICRC appeals for humanitarian assistance and will continue to provide support to address the growing humanitarian needs in Syria and their impact on regional countries. We welcome the contributions announced at the meeting of donor countries on the margins of the G20. We call upon all parties to allow humanitarian actors safe and unhindered access to those in need.

— European signatories will continue to engage in promoting a common European position."
